WATSON WILL LEAD PRESIDENT'S FIGHT ON DEBENTURE PLAN

Floor Leader Shows Harmony Exists; Expect Victory

WASHINGTON, April 23.—President Hoover's fight against the debenture plan of farm relief will be led in the senate by one of the initial framers of the discarded equalization fee plan and a strong opponent of Mr. Hoover for the Republican presidential nomination, Senator James E. Watson of Indiana, the new Republican floor leader.

Watson announced today he would move at the first available opportunity the debenture clause be stricken from the administration farm relief bill. Ordinarily such a motion would be made by Chairman McNary of the agriculture committee but Watson decided to make it so as to promote the idea of letting bygones be bygones in the new Hoover harmony program.

The administration anticipates the Watson motion will be adopted easily because of the split in the farm bloc and among Democrats after Mr. Hoover's strong denunciation of the debenture scheme. "President Hoover has cleaned the air around the farm bill," Watson said in a formal statement prior to his announcement. "Under his able leadership, the congress will quickly enact a farm relief bill, based upon the principles expounded in the Republican platform. I feel certain the senate, as well as the house, will follow the president's suggestion and eliminate the so-called debenture export plan for farm legislation."

McNary has re-written his report in view of the committee decision 8 to 6 to retain the debenture clause. The report and the bill are to be presented in the senate as soon as it meets.

The house has decided to continue general debate another day and will conclude tonight. Amendment will be voted on tomorrow. Most of the amendments are expected to be voted down and the bill is scheduled for passage tomorrow.

Another Hoover principle was at issue when the senate immigration committee met to consider resolutions and bills repealing or suspending the national origins provision of the immigration act as demanded by Mr. Hoover in his message to congress.

Polls of leaders indicate a suspension bill may be passed by both houses despite the strong opposition of Senator Reed of Pennsylvania, a Mellon leader of great influence in the senate.

TOLEDO, O., April 23.—Three persons were injured, several others were shocked and windows in business establishments were shattered when a sewer gas explosion rocked the downtown section today.

Two of those injured, John Hemminger, 30, and Terrence Barrow, 20, were employees of the Toledo Edison Co. They were working on a conduit under the street when the blast let go.

The third victim was a girl pedestrian who was knocked to the pavement and cut by glass which showered down upon her.

The blast occurred in a manhole directly in front of fire house No. 3, and members of the department administered first aid.

Hundreds of pedestrians and motorists gathered after the explosion and traffic was hopelessly tangled for a time.

The injured will recover.

GOVERNOR ASKED TO STOP ATTACKS UPON TEXTILE STRIKERS

Declare Deputies Clubbed Pickets Near Mills

CHARLOTTE, N. C., April 23.—The seething southern labor situation was before Gov. O. Max Gardner more specifically today in the form of an appeal from textile workers that he "do something," following attacks on strikers by bayonets and clubs by deputy sheriffs at Gastonia, N. C.

Those who were picketing the Loyal Mills at the edge of town. The officers took over picketing of the town yesterday from National Guard troops who were removed.

Twenty-nine strikers are under arrest, nine of them women. They were taken into custody after about twenty of the sheriffs, brandishing bayoneted guns, rushed a crowd of strikers.

Among several badly beaten was one woman, Mrs. Maude Robinson. Many shots were fired, but no one was struck by the bullets.

The deputies asserted the strikers were violating a city ordinance prohibiting parades.

Leggett Lythe, a Charlotte observer reported, was blackjacked and bayoneted by first deputies who failed to respond with sufficient alacrity when they ordered him to leave a mass meeting which they were breaking up.

He was carried unconscious to the Gastonia Hospital, but later recovered sufficiently to return to his home here.

Among the strikers held in jail are Amy Schechter and Vera Bush, who are charged with obstructing traffic.

"PEEPING TOM" IS SOUGHT IN AKRON

AKRON, O., April 23.—A "Peeping Tom" who answers the description of the Akron clubber, terrified West Hill and North Hill residents last night and sent squads of police into the neighborhood far into the night searching for him.

Scores of calls came in from the best residential section where residents said the "peeper" had been seen looking in window and beckoning them to come out.

Several callers said the man carried a club.

Squads of detectives and police, aroused by the attack on Mrs. Nina King, 23, near her home, Sunday morning, rushed to the sections, but search failed to reveal the man.

Mrs. King is still suffering from nervous shock and severe bruises inflicted by the sashweight the culprit carried. Her screams frightened him away.

REPARATIONS MEET FAILS OF SOLUTION BUT RETAINS HOPES

Continues Private Discussion While Making Report

PARIS, April 23.—The conference of reparations experts at a plenary session today, failed to find a solution of the reparations problem, but left the way open for possible agreement before it adjourns.

The conference decided to start drafting its final report, at the same time arranging for private discussions among the various delegations in the hope that before the final report is finished, compromises will be attained which will prevent utter failure of the conference.

At today's plenary session, Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, head of the German delegation, appeared with his associates and made a new presentation of his views after a hurried weekend trip to Berlin for consultation with his government. If he presented any new suggestion, Dr. Schacht evidently did not make any proposal which was acceptable.

An official communique announcing that the drafting of the final report had been ordered by the American spokesman said only slender hopes remained for agreement with the Germans on annuities. Otherwise, he said, the final report would refer the problem back to the government's involved, with the definite admission that the experts were unable to agree.

The communique issued after today's session said the committee received and ordered filed a report of the subcommittee (the Revelstoke committee) stating that an agreement on figures had not been reached. The committee in plenary session decided on the appointment of a sub-committee composed of the chiefs of each group, charged with outlining the chief points to be embodied in the report.

"While this work is proceeding," it is anticipated that all groups will endeavor to arrive at an agreement on points upon which an accord has not been reached. It is expected that this general procedure will result in time-saving and by defining the area of the agreement, will advance the committee's final work."

DEATH TOLL STANDS AT 26; WATCH BEING KEPT ALONG LEVEES

Farm Property Is Worst Sufferer; Skies Clearing

ST. LOUIS, Mo., April 23.—Rampant nature, which for three days scourged the Mississippi Valley with floods and tornadoes, appeared to be subsiding today.

The toll of dead in the week-end tornadoes and floods remained at twenty-six. Property damage was heavy especially in farming regions where freshly sown crops were destroyed by winds and flood waters.

Actual damage to homes in towns struck by the tornadoes was negligible.

The toll included thirteen at Tiller, Ark. seven at Dahomey, Shaw and Starkville, Miss., two at Oakridge, La., two at Walton, Ky., one at Reece, Kan., and one at St. Louis.

Close watch was maintained on overtaxed levees for hundreds of miles of river front. Unless additional rains occur to swell a flood crest now slowly moving southward, government observers here anticipated no further damage than that caused by levee washouts at two northeastern Missouri points and at Laconia, Ark., on White River.

Thousands of acres of fertile farm lands in stage of early cultivation were under water, however, and several hundred families were forced out of bottomland homes.

Factories in the Quincy, Ill., area were shut down by high water.

Approximately 2,000 inhabitants of the White River Valley at Laconia were driven to high ground by a 150-foot break in a private levee above that town Monday.

Some 100 families were rendered homeless by two levee breaks Sunday, one north and one south of Canton, Mo., midway between Keokuk and Hannibal on the Mississippi.

Flood waters at Keokuk were on the wane today after reaching a stationary point Monday.

YOUTH REPUDIATES MURDER ADMISSION IN KIDNAPING CASE

Prosecutor Thinks Boy Innocent; Still Is Held

YOUNGSTOWN, O., April 23.—Harold Harshman, 15, was held in the county jail here today while authorities probed the truth or falsity of his "confession" that he kidnaped 10-year-old Beatrice Rosebaum last summer and left her to die in a wooded ravine near Salem.

After making a written confession admitting the abduction, the lad repudiated the statement, leaving police and county authorities in a quandary.

County Prosecutor Ray L. Thomas said today that he was convinced the boy is innocent and that he made the "confession" in the belief that some newspaper or magazine would pay him a large sum for a story.

Police Chief J. J. McNicholas, on the other hand, has checked numerous angles of the youth's story and is convinced that he is telling the truth.

McNicholas said young Harshman told his story of the kidnapping in a straightforward manner, going over it several times without changing a detail.

Beatrice, a cripple, was abducted last May. She was found later in the ravine near Salem, dead from exposure and starvation.

No charge has been placed against Harshman, pending further inquiry. Prosecutor Thomas said he probably would be turned over to the juvenile court.

Harshman was one of the Boy Scouts who led a search for Beatrice after her disappearance. In his confession he said he kidnaped her because he disliked her brother and "desired revenge." He took the child to the ravine, intending to hold her for a reward, he said, then he became frightened and didn't return.

"I didn't do it dad," the boy told his father, Ben Harshman, when the latter visited him in the jail last night. "I thought a 'confession' would be a good publicity stunt."

The boy was arrested Saturday on a worthless check charge and was in jail yesterday when his "confession" was obtained.

FLAMING YOUTH AND NEGLIGENT PARENTS ON TRIAL IN CHICAGO

CHICAGO, April 23.—Flaming youth and the irresponsible parent went on trial today before an unofficial jury of twelve prominent women who will seek to determine the guilt or innocence of a mother in the truancy of her fifteen-year-old daughter.

The jury was composed of women, seven of them mothers, who have devoted many years to solution of civic and social problems. The court was that of Municipal Judge Alfred O. Erickson. The defendant was Mrs. Jane Liston, charged with violation of the compulsory education law.

Mrs. Liston's daughter, Coletta, testifying last week in the inquiry into a grammar-school liquor party accident, was the author of the code of "the boy, the girl and the bottle" which has aroused Chicago parents and educational authorities and led to the trial today.

Among the members of the unofficial jury, opinion predominated that parents are responsible for the so-called "gin and jazz" parties of modern youth.

The opinions of the jurywomen, expressed in interviews with the United Press, revealed close adherence to the principles of parental responsibility cited in the recommendations of the coroner's jury of educators which last week challenged youth to discard its "gin-code" and save itself from social and moral deterioration.

Mrs. Andrew McLeish, president of the Chicago Woman's Club, criticized parents for failure to make homes attractive for their children.

"Parents are principally to blame for the mistakes of their sons and daughters," Mrs. MacLeish said. "In many cases the parents themselves set an example of lawlessness and irresponsibility which their children follow."

Mrs. William Harrison Cade, Illinois chairman of the National Law Enforcement Committee, believes youth today is just as good, perhaps better than the boys and girls of the past generations.

"I have no children, but I have trained and nursed children for the past twenty-five years," she said. "There is nothing wrong with modern youth except that children of today need parental protection. It is commercial vice that invades our youth today. Parents should enjoy the pleasures of youth with their children, go to dances with them, to the theater and act as proper chaperones at social functions."

The novel trial will be unofficial because women are not permitted to sit as jurors in Illinois. Judge Erickson, however, indicated that his official verdict would abide by the verdict of unofficial jury. The women also expected to return a code with which parents may combat the evil influences which affect their children today.

The trial was closely watched by Superintendent of Schools William Bogan who ordered Mrs. Liston's arrest and led the investigation in the party which Coletta Liston attended.

DEFENSE TO SPRING SURPRISE IN HARDY IMPEACHMENT TRIAL

Judge Expected To Testify In His Own Defense

SACRAMENTO, Calif., April 23.—Two "surprise" witnesses will be placed on the witness stand by defense attorneys for Superior Judge Carlos S. Hardy in his impeachment trial before the state senate on charges of misconduct in office.

Identify of the surprise witnesses was guarded closely by Rex Hardy, son and attorney for the accused jurist. They are expected to strengthen Judge Hardy's denial of the charges that he obstructed justice in the investigation of Almee Semple McPherson's kidnapping story and that he directed activities of detectives investigating the case.

Judge Hardy was expected to testify in his own defense late today. He probably will give his version of the $2,500 "love gift" he accepted from Mrs. McPherson and Mrs. Minnie B. Kennedy, her mother. The state charges the gift was in return for legal services rendered the evangelist.

Whether Mrs. McPherson would be called as a witness remained problematical. Both prosecution and defense said they had no immediate need for her but said she would be kept in Sacramento as a rebuttal witness in case of emergency.

POSTAL INSPECTOR INJURED IN BATTLE WITH TRAPPED GANG

Postoffice Bandits Are Caught In Chicago Hotel Room

CHICAGO, April 23.—A woman and four men, members of a post-office robbery gang, engaged in a revolver and shot gun battle with two post-office inspectors and an assistant who trapped them in a small room in the Hawthorne Arms Hotel today.

Evan L. Jackson, assistant chief of Chicago postal inspectors, and one member of the gang were critically wounded. The woman was injured and captured after she had leaped thirty feet from a window of the hotel room in an attempt to escape. Three of her companions, one of them wounded, escaped.

Jackson was shot through the hip, leg and abdomen. At the marine hospital attaches said his condition was critical.

The gang had been identified as the leaders in the $18,000 money order robbery of a suburban postal station April 4. The robbers had cashed $1,000 worth of the orders by using the account of Mrs. Morris Stein, a shoe merchant.

Postal inspectors had arranged with Stein to decoy the gangsters to the hotel where the merchant was to deal in exchange of the money orders. The conference was underway with inspectors posted in an adjoining room listening, when the leader of the gangsters became suspicious and necessitated entry of the inspectors.

Jackson fought three men while Stein was wounding a fourth. The wounded bandit was identified as Clyde Macklin. The leader was John Courtney, ex-convict. The woman was his wife, Marie Courtney.

The battle lasted for nearly ten minutes before the gangsters sought escape through a window. Escape through the hotel had been cut off by awakened residents of the hotel who were rushing up the stairs to the scene.

DEATH TOLL STANDS AT 26; WATCH BEING KEPT ALONG LEVEES

Farm Property Is Worst Sufferer; Skies Clearing

ST. LOUIS, Mo., April 23.—Rampant nature, which for three days scourged the Mississippi Valley with floods and tornadoes, appeared to be subsiding today.

The toll of dead in the week-end tornadoes and floods remained at twenty-six. Property damage was heavy especially in farming regions where freshly sown crops were destroyed by winds and flood waters.

Actual damage to homes in towns struck by the tornadoes was negligible.

The dead included thirteen at Tilar, Ark., seven at Dahomey, Shaw and Starkville, Miss., two at Oakridge, La., two at Walton, Ky., one at Reese, Kan., and one at St. Louis.

Close watch was maintained on overtaxed levees for hundreds of miles of river front. Unless additional rains occur to swell a flood crest now slowly moving southward, government observers here anticipated no further damage than that caused by levee washouts at two northeastern Missouri points and at Laconia, Ark., on White River.

Thousands of acres of fertile farm lands in stage of early cultivation were under water, however, and several hundred families were forced out of bottomland homes.

Factories in the Quincy, Ill., area were shut down by high water. Approximately 2,000 inhabitants of the White River Valley at Laconia were driven to high ground by a 150-foot break in a private levee above that town Monday.

Some 100 families were rendered homeless by two levee breaks Sunday, one north and one south of Canton, Mo., midway between Kookuk and Hannibal on the Mississippi.

Flood waters at Kookuk were on the wane today after reaching a stationary point Monday.

HARRISBURG, Pa., April 23.—Clearing skies today held out hope that the crest of the Susquehanna flood, which already has been responsible for at least three deaths and hundreds of thousands of dollars property damage, would soon be reached.

At Wilkes-Barre the river has reached a stage of 26.5 feet and is still rising. A fourteen-foot stage was expected at Harrisburg today while Elmira reported that the crest of the flood had been reached and the river was dropping.

Lowlands in the vicinity of Wilkes-Barre were inundated and families have been forced to flee from homes in the river-bottom sections.

Judge Hardy was expected to testify in his own defense late today. He probably will give his version of the $2500 "love gift" he accepted from Mrs. McPherson and Mrs. Minnie B. Kennedy, her mother. The state charges the gift was in return for legal services rendered the evangelist.

Whether Mrs. McPherson would be called as a witness remained problematical. Both prosecution and defense said they had no immediate need for her but said she would be kept in Sacramento as a rebuttal witness in case of emergency.

Rich Bachelor Marries Nurse

Henry L. Doherty, right, one of America's wealthiest bachelors and conspicuous figure in the business and financial world, is now revealed to have quietly married Mrs. Percy Frank Eames, left, last December, in Toronto, Can. FLAMING YOUTH AND NEGLIGENT PARENTS ON TRIAL IN CHICAGO

CHICAGO, April 23.—Flaming youth and the irresponsible parent went on trial today before an unofficial jury of twelve prominent women who will seek to determine the guilt or innocence of a mother in the truancy of her fifteen-year-old daughter.

The jury was composed of women, seven of them mothers, who have devoted many years to solution of civic and social problems. The court was that of Municipal Judge Alfred O. Erickson. The defendant was Mrs. Jane Liston, charged with violation of the compulsory education law.

Mrs. Liston's daughter, Coletta, testifying last week in the inquiry into a grammar-school liquor party accident, was the author of the code of "the boy, the girl and the bottle" which has aroused Chicago parents and educational authorities and led to the trial today.

Among the members of the unofficial jury, opinion predominated that parents are responsible for the so-called "gin and jazz" parties of modern youth.

The opinions of the jurywomen, expressed in interviews with the United Press, revealed close adherence to the principles of parental responsibility cited in the recommendations of the coroner's jury of educators which last week challenged youth to discard its "gin-code" and save itself from social and moral deterioration.

Mrs. Andrew MacLeish, president of the Chicago Woman's Club, criticized parents for failure to make homes attractive for their children.

"Parents are principally to blame for the mistakes of their sons and daughters," Mrs. MacLeish said. "In many cases the parents themselves set an example of lawlessness and irresponsibility which their children follow."

Mrs. William Harrison Cade, Illinois chairman of the National Law Enforcement Committee, believes youth today is just as good, perhaps better than the boys and girls of the past generations.

"I have no children, but I have trained and nursed children for the past twenty-five years," she said. "There is nothing wrong with modern youth except that children of today need parental protection. It is commercial vice that inveigles our youth today. Parents should enjoy the pleasures of youth with their children, go to dances with them, to the theater and act as proper chaperones at social functions."

The novel trial will be unofficial because women are not permitted to sit as jurors in Illinois. Judge Erickson, however, indicated that his official verdict would abide by the verdict of unofficial jury. The women also expect to return a code with which parents may combat the evil influences which affect their children today.

POSTAL INSPECTOR INJURED IN BATTLE WITH TRAPPED GANG

Postoffice Bandits Are Caught In Chicago Hotel Room

CHICAGO, April 23.—A woman and four men, members of a post-office robbery gang, engaged in a revolver and shot gun battle with two post-office inspectors and an assistant who trapped them in a small room in the Hawthorne Arms Hotel today.

Evan L. Jackson, assistant chief of Chicago postal inspectors, and one member of the gang were critically wounded. The woman was injured and captured after she had leaped thirty feet from a window of the hotel room in an attempt to escape. Three of her companions, one of them wounded, escaped.

Jackson was shot through the hip, leg and abdomen. At the marine hospital attaches said his condition was critical.

The gang had been identified as the leaders in the $18,000 money order robbery of a suburban postal station April 4. The robbers had cashed $1,000 worth of the orders by using the account of Mrs. Morrie Stein, a shoe merchant.

Postal inspectors had arranged with Stein to decoy the gangsters to the hotel where the merchant was to deal in exchange of the money orders. The conference was underway with inspectors posted in an adjoining room listening, when the leader of the gangsters became suspicious and necessitated entry of the inspectors.

Jackson fought three men while Stein was wounding a fourth. The wounded bandit was identified as Clyde Macklin. The leader was Joan Courtney, ex-convict. The woman was his wife, Marie Courtney.

"The battle lasted for nearly ten minutes before the gangsters sought escape through a window. Jackson fought three men while Stein was wounding a fourth. The wounded bandit was identified as Clyde Macklin. The leader was Joan Courtney, ex-convict. The woman was his wife, Marie Courtney."

CHICAGO EMBROILED IN BATTLE OVER
HIGH COST OF MEDICAL TREATMENT

By ROY J. GIBBONS
Central Press Staff Writer
CHICAGO, April 23.—Members of the Chicago Medical society, who are at lance-points with one another over low-cost medical treatment, and ethics of advertising public health institutions, are last embroiling the medical profession of the entire nation in what promises to be the most serious schism in its history.

The row started with the expulsion of Dr. Louis E. Schmidt, one of the country's foremost surgeons, from membership in the physicians' organization for alleged unethical conduct. Following rapidly on this came the resignation of Dr. Herman N. Bundesen, county coroner and nationally known health authority, and Dr. Rachelle Yarros, University of Chicago obstetrician and social worker. They resigned, they explained, in sympathy with Dr. Schmidt.

Now the fight marches on to the position of a national affair, with Dr. Bundesen announcing he will carry the dispute to the national committee on the cost of medical attention, an independent body which meets in New York in May.

Friends stand by Schmidt. That the entire matter eventually will be threshed out by the national medical body appears to be certain, observers here declare. Dr. Schmidt has not indicated whether he will appeal his case, but his colleagues and friends have stated definitely that they will go to the front for him immediately.

Action of the Chicago Medical Society in declaring unethical the practices in vogue at Chicago Public Health Institute, has brought down the ire of the great mass of citizens on the society's name. The Chicago Association of Commerce has gone on record as unqualifiedly condemning the organization of physicians for its opposition to low cost medical treatment. The business men accuse the physicians of working against the best interests of the community and they have appointed a committee to confer with the officers of the medical society in an effort to reach an understanding.

Dr. Frank M. Billings, of the University of Chicago, who added in framing the code of the American name, were among those who condemned the medical society's action.

Members of the executive committee of the commerce association also voted to work for defeat of a bill before the Illinois state senate, which would disqualify most clinics by making it illegal to carry on medical work under the auspices of corporations, even though the corporations are organized "not for profit."

When it ousted Dr. Schmidt, the physician society contended that the Public Health Institute was unethical, and that Dr. Schmidt, through the Illinois Social Hygiene League, is connected with it.

"Medical care offered by the Public Health Institute, in my opinion, is not what many believe it to be," said Dr. Irving S. Cutler, of Northwestern University. "The fees charged by it are so low that the institute is unable to pay its physicians enough to attract high-grade specialists as physicians."

"Furthermore, the Public Health Institute, through its advertising, lures people to come to it who could afford thoroughly competent medical attention. Its advertising gives the impression to many that the brains and equipment of the Public Health Institute are better than the brains and equipment to be procured elsewhere."

"The Illinois Social Hygiene League is an entirely different type of institution. It does not operate on a fee basis, but gives its services without pay to those who could not afford to pay. It has a fine record in keeping down disease. And its standards of medical services are, unusually high."

The ouster of Dr. Schmidt of the league, which is connected in a financial way with the Public Health Institute, Dr. Cutler thought, was an unfortunate way of approaching the low cost of medical attention problem.

Chicago, he said, is only one of a hundred cities throughout the country that have to face the problem of what to do to relieve the plight of the middle-class medical patient, not charity patient, who, under modern economic conditions is unable to pay the fees of high class specialists.

"The thing to do is to save lives and talk about ethics afterwards," Dr. Bundesen told the business men.

THE PRESIDENT EIGHT SEDAN, 125-inch wheelbase, $1,785. Prices at the factory. Bumpers and spare tire extra.

NEVER has universal prestige come so swiftly to a motor car as to Studebaker's President Straight Eight . . . and never was prestige so richly merited.

Merely to create a single car capable of The President's heroic feat of speeding 30,000 miles in 26,326 minutes, would be a triumph. To design and produce in quantity and at The President's One-Price price, motor cars so uniformly excellent that four of them could be picked blindly from the assembly lines by impartial officials, who disassembled, checked and certified them as regular factory production cars in every particular, then re-assembled and sealed them, to start and finish a steady grind of 20 days and 19 nights at 64 to 68 miles per hour average—that is an epic!

What wonder that this magnificent President Eight, styled in youthful, vigorous beauty, cradled in ball bearing comfort, should have outsold every other eight in the world within six months after its introduction!

Have you seen The President? Have you driven it? If you have, and if you seek a car in The President's price class, then no other motor car will ever wholly satisfy you.

"TAD" JONES WILL PROTEST FIRING ON HIS COAL COLLIER

NEW HAVEN, Conn., April 23.—"Tad" Jones' protest against the alleged bombing of one of his colliers by a coast guard cutter off the Jersey coast Sunday was expected to be filed in Washington today.

The former Yale football coach who conducts a large coal business, announced today his determination to find out why the cutter "Seneca" reportedly fired six shots at the collier "T. A. D. Jones" without warning.

Jones said J. Frederick Baker, New Haven lawyer, would file official protest with treasury department officials in Washington probably today.

Jones' decision to demand an explanation from coast guard authorities came after he conferred with Captain W. J. Keating of Beacon, N. Y., skipper of the collier.

According to the explanation Keating gave his employer, the "T. A. D. Jones" was proceeding toward New Haven from Norfolk Va., with a load of coal. About fifty miles off the New Jersey shore and 100 miles southwest of Montauk Point, Third Mate Robert Clark of Providence, R. I., who was on the bridge, heard a siren, Keating said. Before he could lift a hand, three shots were fired across the coal vessel, one missing Clark by a scant few feet.

"And after we were hoisted to three more shots were fired at us," Keating said, according to Jones.

Keating told Jones a boat carrying the "Seneca" and an ensign came alongside the "Jones" from the ship's papers. The captain said he was ordered to stand by until the Seneca had cleared.

WHEN A CHILD IS FEVERISH, CROSS, UPSET

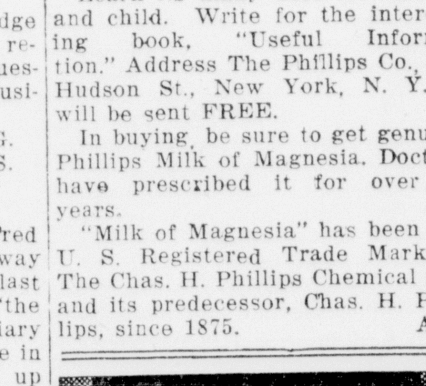

Colic, gas, sour belching, frequent vomiting, feverishness, in babies and children, generally show food is souring in the little digestive tract.

Older children should be given a tablespoonful in a glass of water. This will comfort the child—make his stomach and bowels easy. In five minutes he is comfortable, happy. FIVE HORSES AND CALF PERISH WHEN FIRE DESTROYS BARN

Five horses and a seven-months old calf perished when fire destroyed a barn and its contents of the farm of Kelly Mendenhall, five miles south of Xenia on the New Burlington Pike, shortly before 2 o'clock Tuesday morning.

Although members of the family had not fixed an estimate on the loss Tuesday morning, it is expected to amount to several thousand dollars, which is believed to be partly covered by insurance.

Besides the livestock the flames destroyed a Ford automobile, a corn sheller, buzz saw, 200 bushels of feeding corn and several bushels of seed corn.

Origin of the blaze remains a mystery. It was discovered at 1:45 when a neighbor telephoned to Mrs. Mendenhall. She had been up at 1:30 and did not see the flames although the fire is believed to have been burning then. Allan Mendenhall parked the car at 12 o'clock at which time, there was no indication of a blaze.

When discovered, the barn, a frame structure with room for sixteen head of cattle, was enveloped in flames. The mow was empty, the hay being kept in another barn. The shed in which the car was kept, was between the barn and corn crib, adjoining both. Allan Mendenhall extinguished flames which caught the roof of an old log barn nearby but other buildings were not endangered by the fire, and there was no wind.

Neighbors who quickly gathered, concentrated on keeping the burning strawpile from spreading and a hand-pump chemical from New Burlington rendered assistance. Cattle and pigs which had been left in the barn lot, moved from proximity of the flames.

The horses destroyed constituted the greatest loss, because they were considered valuable work horses, and most of them were young.

Story telling is the chief hobby of W. F. Carey and there will be tall tales told these spring afternoons when the new head of Madison Square Garden gets his feet under—possibly on top of—big, bronze-bound desk which goes with the job.

Other men with Bill's millions have their various hobbies, including one of his close associates, Richard F. Hoyt, who flies his own airplane, but this modern troubadour likes nothing on earth so much as telling stories.

Because of his admitted preference for spinning yarns, distracted boards of directors, hostesses and Carey's own charming and indulgent family sometimes have to wait while Tex Rickard's successor gets a story or two off his chest.

And Carey is not the least bit choicy about his audience. It makes little difference to Bill who is listening, whether it is his brother, Mike, who has heard them all a score of times and probably could recite them backward, or a mere chance acquaintance.

Those persons who have come in contact with the new president of Madison Square Garden say that W. F. Carey is a good story teller, and that there are few men easier to listen to. Which is quite a trait as good story tellers are rare.

Speaking of contrasting types, W. F. Carey is no more like the man he succeeds than day is like night. One main difference between the two men is that Carey gives the impression that he trusts everyone, while Tex Rickard trusted no one, had no real confidants.

The new president says regarding his apparent trustful nature: "Mostly I do, but once a man violates my confidence, I never trust him again."

"I'm going to try to make the policy of Madison Square Garden a policy of telling the public the truth through the newspapers. We'll not have anything to conceal if I can help it."

With all proper respect for the late Tex Rickard, everything was not open and above board when he was running things. There was a lot concealed and a good portion of it was kept locked up within the recesses of Rickard's extraordinary brain, the brain which conceived and made possible Madison Square Garden. His brain was Rickard's record book as the directors of the Garden learned to their embarrassment when Tex died.

On the other hand Carey is first, last and always a business man who is a firm believer in organization. Rickard was more of the visionary type and played a lone hand.

The first session, that of southeastern Ohio bankers, was held at Athens today.

The southwestern section will meet at Wilmington Thursday, the northeastern section at Canton May 1, and the northeastern section at Findlay, May 2.

The agricultural experts will discuss various phases of the farm situation from the banker's standpoint, dwelling particularly on the type of agriculture prevalent in the section where the meetings are held.

The general theme of each meeting will be how the bankers can co-operate in bettering conditions of the farmer, by putting his operations on a more profitable basis.

COUNTY DAIRY CLUB COMMITTEE MEETS

The County Dairy 4-H Club committee together with the dairy club leaders and advisors will meet in the assembly room of the Court House, Wednesday evening, at 8 o'clock to formulate plans for the year.

Andrews and Lawrence Alexander, has succeeded in building a large county club, with seventeen animals of the Holstein, Guernsey and Jersey breeds being exhibited at Greene County Fair last year. Six of the boys exhibited at the Ohio State Fair. The club was also represented at the state fair by a dairy judging team.

Any boy or girl between the ages of twelve and twenty-one is eligible to membership and may carry either the dairy calf, dairy heifer, or production project. Frank A. Wolf is county leader of the club.

GIANTS WILL OPEN WITH LOWLY PHILS

NEW YORK, April 23.—The New York Giants will open the season at the Polo Grounds against the Philadelphia Phillies today, weather permitting.

Although the Giants have won the only two games played against the Phillies, baseball fans haven't been able to get a real line on John J. McGraw's 1929 entry in the National League flag chase. Both games were ragged exhibitions which the Giants won by terrific hitting.

The numerous postponements which are fast taking the edge off the Giants' condition and the sensational showing of the Chicago Cubs against the strong western teams have made McGraw and some of his players nervous over their idleness.

Joe Genewich has been nominated to pitch for the Giants and Claude Willoughby probably will oppose him.

The agricultural experts will discuss various phases of the farm situation from the banker's standpoint, dwelling particularly on the type of agriculture prevalent in the section where the meetings are held. The general theme of each meeting will be how the bankers can co-operate in bettering conditions of the farmer, by putting his operations on a more profitable basis.

COUNTY DAIRY CLUB COMMITTEE MEETS

The County Dairy 4-H Club committee together with the dairy club leaders and advisors will meet in the assembly room of the Court House, Wednesday evening, at 8 o'clock to formulate plans for the year.

The committee, consisting of F. A. Wolf, S. D. Andrews and Lawrence Alexander, has succeeded in building a large county club, with seventeen animals of the Holstein, Guernsey and Jersey breeds being exhibited at Greene County Fair last year. Six of the boys exhibited at the Ohio State Fair. The club was also represented at the state fair by a dairy judging team.

Any boy or girl between the ages of twelve and twenty-one is eligible to membership and may carry either the dairy calf, dairy heifer, or production project. Frank A. Wolf is county leader of the club.

TROOP 40 SOFTBALL TEAM WINS TWICE

The softball team of Troop No. 40, Boy Scouts of America, won a double-header from Troop 45 Monday night. The score of the first game was 16 to 0. The second game also ended in Troop 40's favor, 7 to 3, after the lineup of Troop 45 had been strengthened by the addition of Scoutmaster Blackburn.

All members of Troop 40 are asked to be present at a meeting Wednesday. There will be a "bean feed."

GIANTS WILL OPEN WITH LOWLY PHILS

NEW YORK, April 23.—The New York Giants will open the season at the Polo Grounds against the Philadelphia Phillies today, weather permitting.

Although the Giants have won the only two games played against the Phillies, baseball fans haven't been able to get a real line on John J. McGraw's 1929 entry in the National League flag chase. Both games were ragged exhibitions which the Giants won by terrific hitting.

The numerous postponements which are fast taking the edge off the Giants' condition and the seasonal showing of the Chicago Cubs against the strong western teams have made McGraw and some of his players nervous over their idleness.

Joe Genewich has been nominated to pitch for the Giants and Claude Willoughby probably will oppose him.

REORGANIZATION OF CHIEF DIPLOMATIC POSTS SEEN

The death of Ambassador Myron T. Herrick presents the possibility of almost a general reorganization of the diplomatic corps in the important posts. Photo shows (1) Hugh Gibson, ambassador to Belgium, mentioned as Herrick's successor; (2) Alvan Fuller, former governor of Massachusetts, another candidate for the French post; (3) Dr. Jacob Gould Schurman will probably be retained as ambassador to Germany; (4) Dwight Davis, former secretary of war, who may be the next ambassador to France; (5) John Garrett, former minister to Holland and Argentina, and (6) William J. Donovan, former assistant attorney general, are other possible successors to Herrick; (7) John MacMurray, minister to China, may be named ambassador to Japan; (8) Henry P. Fletcher, ambassador to Italy, and (9) Charles Dawes, former vice president, likely candidates for ambassador to Great Britain; (10) Eugene Gilmore, vice governor of the Philippines, who is expected to be made governor general.

MILLIONAIRES ARE FEW IN MOTION PICTURE CIRCLES

Despite the tremendous salaries paid to motion picture stars few of them are entitled to rank in the millionaire class. The entrance of Al Jolson, Eddie Cantor and Paul Whiteman into the talkies slightly augments the number. Many of the players have increased their earnings by real estate investments, especially Will Rogers and Ruth Roland, who have not been seen in the silent drama for many months. The group above constitutes the millionaires of filmdom, those who either have saved or wisely invested their weekly pay checks, which range from $5,000 to $20,000.

Impeachment Trial to Prove Bribe Theory

Judge Carlos Hardy, California Superior Court Judge, inset, is fighting hard in impeachment trial before Senate, in connection with Aimee Semple McPherson, so-called "kidnapping" affair of three years ago. Mrs. Lorraine Wiseman-Seilaff, the "Madame X" of the case, exploded a bomb in court when she stated famous Evangelist admitted to her she was Ormiston's companion at Carmel love cottage. Furthermore, that Justice Hardy accepted a

$2,500 check from Mrs. McPherson to shut his ears to any other story than that the Holy Woman really was in the hands of her abductors in Mexican desert, at same time she was supposed to be with Ormiston, Miss Bernice Morris, left, secretary to late Attorney McKinley, of Long Beach, Cal., who investigated the alleged kidnapping, is an important witness in the present impeachment session. Choker Necklaces Then and Now

Remember the choker necklace? In the picture on the left Mary Doran demonstrates how it was worn in the olden days of 1928. On the right, however, she introduces a new way of using it, which is fashionable as well as utilitarian. "It's very simple," says Mary. "Just attach the choker to the side of the hat, and when you take your hat off, presto! you have a choker necklace."

FRESHIE TRIUMPHS AS PROM QUEEN

Even if she is only a freshman, Ortha Anne Smith, of Columbus, has the distinction of being queen of the annual senior prom. Howard E. Kriss, of East Cleveland, O., senior class president, and football star, chose her as his partner. Miss Smith is the second freshman in the social history of the university to be so honored.

Spanish-Rumania Alliance Rumored

Since the visit of Queen Mary of Rumania, Europe's best royal matchmaker, to Spain, rumors have been given impetus that Princess Ileana of Rumania, left, and Prince Asturias of Spain, right, may wed.

Insanity Possible Torch Slayer Defense

The Jekyll-Hyde career of Henry Colin Campbell (left), self-confessed murderer of Mrs. Mildred Mowry, torch victim in auto (top) on lonely road at Cranford, N. and with his addiction to drugs will play an important role in his defense. His real wife (center) visits the gray-haired prisoner daily at the county jail and is sticking to him. Police believe that his plans had been made to kill her and his daughter, "Sally Lou" (right).

FARM BILL FOLLOWS LINES ADVOCATED BY HOOVER

A bill providing for a revolving fund of $500,000,000 to place agriculture "on a basis of economic equality with other industries," has been laid before the full committee of the house by Chairman Gilbert N. Haugen, of Iowa. The bill, creating a board of six members to administer the money reservoir to aid the farmer in marketing his crops, follows lines advocated by President Hoover. The bill empowers the president to appoint the board members regardless of party affiliation. The secretary of agriculture, Arthur M. Hyde, serves as a member ex officio.

Bathing Suits to Match Every Complexion

The time has come when all women who care should start worrying about their swimming apparel for the coming season. Now, it stands to reason that what's good for blondes won't be entirely suitable for brunettes. Here are three models to choose from, and you can't go wrong on any of them. On the left, Dorothy Sebastian, decided brunette, wears a colorful two-piece suit of scarlet and white. Red and white slipper complete this ensemble. The smiler in the center is Joan Crawford, wearing an extremely attractive suit, sporting a flying fish emblem. Anita Page, right, has chosen a navy blue and white suit, which shows up her fair skin to very good advantage.

RECOVER AUTO AND ARREST TWO YOUTHS ACCUSED OF THEFT

Marvin Tullis, Husted, O., who watched his auto being stolen early Saturday night, was again in possession of the car Tuesday while two youths, charged with the theft, were being held at Police Headquarters awaiting arraignment before Mayor Karl R. Babb on grand larceny charges.

The youths in custody are Lewis Hunter and Carl Hipshire, both of this city.

The stolen car was recovered for its owner Monday night after being found abandoned on a country road near Xenia. The two suspects were taken into custody later at their homes here.

Tullis had parked his machine on Green St. Saturday night while he visited the law office of Attorney F. L. Johnson on the second floor of a nearby building. While in the office he heard the motor of a car running and looking out of the window, saw his auto being driven away. He lost sight of it when the machine turned east on Main St.

DE LUXE DUCO IS DONE

The N. N. Hunter auto agency, W. Second St., may have conceived the idea that one of its second-hand cars parked in front of the agency plant needed a new coat of paint, but it hardly counted on the method employed inadvertently as a means to this end Monday morning.

It all happened this way: A 16-year-old colored boy was riding blithely along on a bicycle west on W. Second St., with a bucket of white paint swinging in his free hand.

His attention was suddenly attracted by another colored youth running along the sidewalk on the opposite side of the street and shouting for the cyclist to give him a ride.

The rider turned his head and a second later crashed broadside into one of the second-hand cars parked at the curb, in front of the Hunter agency.

White paint splattered in all directions, but particularly against one side of the black automobile, transforming the color of one side of the body of the machine.

WEIMER GARAGE IS LOOTED BY THIEVES

County authorities had under investigation Tuesday the reported theft of $451 in cash and an undetermined number of inner tubes from a Cedarville garage owned by Mrs. Ella Weimer and operated by her son, Martin Weimer, late Monday night.

The intruders broke a rear window and then pried off the lock on a door to gain entrance to the office, where they rifled the cash register and stole a number of inner tubes.

The robbery took place some time after the garage closed at 11:20 p. m. Deputy Sheriff George Suggen investigated Tuesday morning.

HOWARD SMITH WILL ADDRESS KIWANIS

Howard S. Smith, Dayton, former governor of the Ohio Kiwanis district, will address Xenia Kiwanians at their weekly dinner meeting at the Elks' Club Tuesday evening.

Mr. Smith, who has made an extensive study of the airplane, will discuss flying conditions and tell of a recent airplane journey. His address is expected to be of interest locally because of agitation recently started here in the interests of establishing an airport in Xenia.

FIVE YEARS OF SUFFERING END; KONJOLA LAUDED

"I Have New and Splendid Health All Over," Declares Lady Who Found A Surprise In New Compound.

MRS. KATHERINE NEMENS

again gives me more joy than I can describe," said Mrs. Katherine Nemens, 253 Hollywood Boulevard, Youngstown.

"The lightest foods caused gas, bloating and general misery. I could not sleep at night. I was so nervous, and sat up most every night reading, knowing that pain and suffering were sure and certain if I laid down. The smallest noises irritate me, and my general health was running low. After meals the gas pressure was so severe that I felt like my heart would stop any minute."

"I read, day after day, of Konjola's remarkable achievements and decided to give it a trial. Today my nerves are as strong as steel. Every sign of indigestion has disappeared. I can eat and sleep like a normal, healthy person. A change like this, it seems to me, is little less than a miracle. Konjola will always have a place in my home."

Konjola is different from any other known remedy in this section. It contains 22 juices extracted from natural plants, which invigorate the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels to a more healthy action. The effect of Konjola on the entire system brings amazing relief in cases of suffering that has been going on for years. At the same time, many weak and run-down systems have been restored to a new state of health thru this compound. Such a vast number of men and women in this city have told of their experience with this new medical product, until now, Konjola is the most highly endorsed medicine that is known in this vicinity.

Konjola is sold in Xenia at the Gallaher Drug Store, and by all the best druggists throughout this entire section.

CASE REMANDED FOR NEW TRIAL; HOLDS TRIAL COURT ERRED

The trial court erred in instructing a jury verdict for the defendant in the $200 promissory note suit filed by Stanley J. Nicely against Charles Weddle, the Greene County Court of Appeals ruled Monday in reversing the judgment of Common Pleas Court and remanding the case for a new trial.

One defense set up by Weddle had been that the note was executed wholly without consideration and that his signature on the note was obtained through fraud and threats of violence.

Evidence was introduced on behalf of the plaintiff to the effect that the money for which the note was given was loaned by Weddle to the woman who on the following day became the wife of the plaintiff. She testified at the trial that the understanding was that the note was to be executed to her intended husband by her consent and to enable the husband to collect the money.

In regard to the instructed verdict for the defendant, the appellate court expressed the belief that the trial court did not consider a section of the general code, which proves among other things that: "A person with whom or in whose name a contract is made for the benefit of another or a person expressly authorized by statute may bring an action without joining with him the person for whose benefit it is prosecuted.

"We cannot reach any other conclusion than that this section of the general code is applicable and would give the plaintiff the right to sue in his own name upon the note in controversy."

John T. Harbino, Jr., was attorney for the plaintiff while Marshall and Marshall were attorneys for the defendant.

RECOVER AUTO AND ARREST TWO YOUTHS ACCUSED OF THEFT

Marvin Tullis, Husted, O., who watched his auto being stolen early Saturday night, was again in possession of the car Tuesday while two youths, charged with the theft, were being held at Police Headquarters awaiting arraignment before Mayor Karl R. Babb on grand larceny charges.

The youths in custody are Lewis Hunter and Carl Hipshire, both of this city.

The stolen car was recovered for its owner Monday night after being found abandoned on a country road near Xenia. The two suspects were taken into custody later at their homes here.

Tullis had parked his machine on Green St. Saturday night while he visited the law office of Attorney F. L. Johnson on the second floor of a nearby building. While in the office he heard the motor of a car running and looking out of the window, saw his auto being driven away. He lost sight of it when the machine turned east on Main St.

WEIMER GARAGE IS LOOTED BY THIEVES

County authorities had under investigation Tuesday the reported theft of $4.51 in cash and an undetermined number of inner tubes from a Cedarville garage owned by Mrs. Ella Weimer and operated by her son, Martin Weimer, late Monday night.

The intruders broke a rear window and then pried off the lock on a door to gain entrance to the office, where they rifled the cash register and stole a number of inner tubes.

The robbery took place some time after the garage closed at 11:20 p. m. Deputy Sheriff George Sugden investigated Tuesday morning.

HOWARD SMITH WILL ADDRESS KIWANIS

Howard S. Smith, Dayton, former governor of the Ohio Kiwanis district, will address Xenia Kiwanis at their weekly dinner meeting at the Elks' Club Tuesday evening.

Mr. Smith, who has made an extensive study of the airplane, will discuss flying conditions and tell of a recent airplane journey. His address is expected to be of interest locally because of agitation recently started here in the interests of establishing an airport in Xenia.

FIVE YEARS OF SUFFERING END; KONJOLA LAUDED

"I Have New and Splendid Health All Over," Declares Lady Who Found A Surprise In New Compound.

"Stomach trouble and nervousness just about made a wreck of me in five years, and to be well again gives me more joy than I can describe," said Mrs. Katherine Nemens, 253 Hollywood Boulevard, Youngstown.

"The lightest foods caused gas, bloating and general misery. I could not sleep at night, I was so nervous, and sat up most every night reading, knowing that pain and suffering were sure and certain if I laid down. The smallest noises irritate me, and my general health was running low. After meals the gas pressure was so severe that I felt like my heart would stop any minute.

"I read, day after day, of Konjola's remarkable achievements and decided to give it a trial. Today my nerves are as strong as steel. Every sign of indigestion has disappeared. I can eat and sleep like a normal, healthy person. A change like this, it seems to me, is little less than a miracle. Konjola will always have a place in my home."

Konjola is different from any other known remedy in this section. It contains 22 juices extracted from natural plants, which invigorate the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels to a more healthy action. The effect of Konjola on the entire system brings amazing relief in cases of suffering that has been going on for years. At the same time, many weak and run-down systems have been restored to a new state of health thru this compound. Such a vast number of men and women in this city have told of their experience with this new medical product, until now, Konjola is the most highly indorsed medicine that is known in this vicinity.

Konjola is sold in Xenia at the Gallaher Drug Store, and by all the best druggists throughout this entire section.

DE LUXE DUCO IS DONE

The N. N. Hunter auto agency, W. Second St., may have conceived the idea that one of its second-hand cars parked in front of the agency plant needed a new coat of paint, but it hardly counted on the method employed inadvertently as a means to this end Monday morning.

It all happened this way: A 16-year-old colored boy was riding blithely along on a bicycle west on W. Second St., with a bucket of white paint swinging in his free hand.

His attention was suddenly attracted by another colored youth running along the sidewalk on the opposite side of the street and shouting for the cyclist to give him a ride.

The rider turned his head and a second later crashed broadside into one of the second-hand cars parked at the curb, in front of the Hunter agency.

White paint splattered in all directions but particularly against one side of the black automobile, transforming the color of one side of the body of the machine.

DR. GALLOWAY WILL COLLECT DATA FOR BOOK ON AUTO TRIP

To gather data for a historical book he is writing, Dr. W. A. Galloway, well known Greene County historian, and his sister, Mrs. Alice G. Eavey, W. Market St., will leave Wednesday morning on a ten-day historical tour, making the trip by motor.

They will first go to Vincennes, Ind., to attend a two-day meeting of the Mississippi Valley Historical Society.

Dr. Galloway will then assist in going over a survey made for the Illinois Historical Society with regard to Gen. George Rogers Clark's route for nine miles through the waters of the Wabash to reach Vincennes Ind. Dr. Galloway will assist Dr. James A. James, dean of the graduate school of Northwestern University, under whose direction the survey was made.

From Vincennes Dr. Galloway and Mrs. Eavey will go to Evansville, Ind., to spend a few days and from there to Louisville, Ky., for copies of historical papers bearing on Gen. Clark's two invasions of Greene County. At the University of Lexington, Dr. Galloway hopes to acquire more material on these invasions, recently unearthed.

CASE REMANDED FOR NEW TRIAL; HOLDS TRIAL COURT ERRED

The trial court erred in instructing a jury verdict for the defendant in the $200 promissory note suit filed by Stanley J. Nicely against Charles Weddle, the Greene County Court of Appeals ruled Monday in reversing the judgment of Common Pleas Court and remanding the case for a new trial.

One defense set up by Weddle had been that the note was executed wholly without consideration and that his signature on the note was obtained through fraud and threats of violence.

Evidence was introduced on behalf of the plaintiff to the effect that the money for which the note was given was loaned by Weddle to the woman who on the following day became the wife of the plaintiff. She testified at the trial that the understanding was that the note was to be executed to her intended husband by her consent and to enable the husband to collect the money.

In regard to the instructed verdict for the defendant, the appellate court expressed the belief that the trial court did not consider a section of the general code, which proves among other things that: "A person with whom or in whose name a contract is made for the benefit of another or a person expressly authorized by statute may bring an action without joining with him the person for whose benefit it is prosecuted.

"We cannot reach any other conclusion than that this section of the general code is applicable and would give the plaintiff the right to sue in his own name upon the note in controversy."

John T. Harbino, Jr., was attorney for the plaintiff while Marshall and Marshall were attorneys for the defendant.

UNDERGROUND

A LOVE AND MYSTERY STORY

BY J. JEFFERSON FARJEON

Copyright, 1929, by Central Press Association, Inc.

READ THIS FIRST:
The plot concerns some weird noises that no one can fathom. They are underground sounds, beneath a supposedly haunted house in Byford Moor. While eating in a restaurant, Brown, a romantic young clerk overhears a rough-looking fellow say: "After her! And—if she's troublesome—don't be particular what you do to her." Brown follows the girl and the trail leads at night to the haunted young men on a walking—&t house. Rupert and Charlie, two cide to assist Brown. While the three are in the house their car is stolen. Later a stranger tells them the car has been abandoned in a field near the house. Rupert and Charlie find the car and are puzzled over its disappearance. A tiny object is seen on the floor of the car.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XII

Rupert stooped, and picked up the tiny object. It was a little mother-of-pearl button.

He regarded it thoughtfully for a few moments, then handed it to his companion.

"What do you make of that?" he inquired.

"Lady's glove button, glove size five and a half, lady five foot three tall and weighing one hundred and twenty-nine pounds," replied Charlie; then stopped short.

"Ah—now I see you're thinking what I'm thinking," observed Rupert. "Name the finger that such a girl can really deduce a lady's height and weight from her glove button, you might be able to deduce her initials."

"J. M.," murmured Charlie.

"Yes—J. M. The initials on the blood-stained handkerchief. The initials of the lady we are helping—and who seems to have helped herself to our car, eh?"

"Looks like it."

"It looks damned like it."

"Yes, but old filthy face in the shed told us he hadn't seen a girl leave the grounds!"

"All the same, we didn't find the girl in the house, did we? And this glove button wasn't in the car when we left it, and it's here now."

"I'm afraid, old chap, it's going to be that girl's finger prints we find on this wheel. Oh, confound it!" he burst out. "I wish I'd seen her with my own eyes so that I could go on backing her wholeheartedly!"

"Still thinking she may be a wrong 'un?" challenged Charlie.

"How can one sanely think anything else?"

"If she's a wrong 'un, Rupert, said Charlie, earnestly, "I'll kick all the boots in the kingdom. Remember what you said a few minutes ago about 'feeling' people? You felt Brown, and you felt old filthy face. Well, although I only saw this girl for a moment, and I admit not under the best circumstances—I felt her."

"You mean, you were swept off your feet by her beauty?"

"Yes—I mean that. But the beauty of Cleopatra or—what's her name?" that dancer who chopped off Herod's head—would never sweep me off my feet."

"Rot—if one's not jolly careful, beauty of any sort sweeps a man off his feet!"

"All right, then—chuck it and go home!" cried Charlie, in sudden exasperation. "Brown and I will fish it."

"Oh, you idiot!" retorted Rupert, as he let in the clutch. "Can you see that this wretched child has swept me off my feet as much as she's swept any of you? She's an absurd goddess in my mind—and I've simply got to meet her, to take down the inflammation!"

The car shot forward, and began to climb the mile they had just walked.

They had taken fifteen minutes to reach the car. They took two to get back. At the gate of Comber House, they stopped, and Rupert sprang out.

"What are you going to do?" asked Charlie, instinctively lowering his voice.

"Find out whether Brown still wants to sleep in a shed," replied Rupert. "We ought to give him one more chance of a comfortable bed—especially as it's now quite certain the girl isn't in the house."

"But he doesn't come," murmured Charlie.

Rupert passed through the gate, and tiptoed to the shed. A snore greeted him. One of the sentries slept.

But the other was wide awake, and advanced to the entrance as Rupert drew up.

"You've found your car, then," said Brown. "I heard you coming."

"Yes; it's outside," replied Rupert. "Want to come along in it?"

"No thanks."

"Think again. Our lady isn't in the house."

"How do you know?"

"Because we found a lady's glove button in the car. It was she who went off with it. So what's the good of waiting?"

Brown hesitated. He was impressed by the news. A comfortable bed at an inn had its advantages. But just suppose—

He shook his head.

"She may come back," he said, slowly. "I'll stay."

"Right," said Rupert, and held out a packet. "Here's a bit of supper. The rest of the sandwiches.

And here's a fresh box of matches, too. You may need 'em. Good night. We'll put up at the nearest inn that can take us, and pay you an early visit in the morning."

"That's the idea," nodded Brown. "Good night."

Then Rupert smiled, in a friendly fashion, and departed. And Brown listened to the departing car, and swore that he wasn't afraid.

The clock in the distance struck eleven as he slipped the box of matches into his pocket and opened the packet of sandwiches. A few feet away from him, Ted snored, with a click. If there was one thing Brown hated, it was a click. He sat in the entrance to the shed, as far from the clicker as he could, and munched. He wasn't in the least hungry. He was too full of emotion. But he thought it wise to stoke up, and he forced three sandwiches down his rebellious throat.

But as he raised the fourth sandwich for its second bite, it remained suspended in the air. It was not destined a second time to reach his open mouth. A light had appeared once more in the empty house.

It is not only when you are dawning that your past life rises before you. Other poignant moments can produce the same effect, such as a light at eleven p. m. in an empty house, and although Brown had vaguely desired that light, or some similar manifestation to incite his dormant ancestral spirit, he passed now through a very bad moment.

During that moment he said goodbye to several pleasant memories. He recalled a party at which, when seven years old, he had kissed a girl of nine. He recalled the day he had got his job. He recalled a score of twenty-seven not out. He recalled his mother, with peculiar vividness. She had been dead a long while, as soon he would be; and when Brown was dead, of course he would not be able to think any more of all these things. That was why he had to think of them now, quickly, while there was time. He also recalled a beautiful girl he had once seen, about a hundred years ago, leaving a restaurant in King's Cross. A dazzlingly beautiful girl, with a figure the very perfection of which made one tremble, and with soft hair coiling distractingly around her ears.

And then, suddenly, Brown woke up from the past, and re-entered the present. That light from the house was his sign—the sign for which he had waited. For too long he had been dominated by stronger personalities. He bore those stronger personalities no grudge. In his honesty, he admitted their superiority, just as he admitted his own inferiority.

UNDERGROUND

A LOVE AND MYSTERY STORY

By J. JEFFERSON FARJEON

Copyright, 1929, by Central Press Association, Inc.

READ THIS FIRST:

The plot concerns some weird noises that no one can fathom. They are underground sounds, and they are supposedly haunted house in Byford Moor. While eating in a restaurant, Brown, a romantic young clerk overheard a romantic-looking fellow say: "After her! And—if she's troublesome—don't be particular what you do to her." Brown follows the girl and the trail leads at night to the haunted young men on a walking—& it was. Rupert and Charlie, two cads to assist Brown. While the three are in the house their car is stolen. Later a stranger tells them the car has been abandoned in a field near the house. Rupert and Charlie find the car and are puzzled over its disappearance. A tiny object is seen on the floor of the car.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XII

Rupert stooped, and picked up the tiny object. It was a little mother-of-pearl button.

He regarded it thoughtfully for a few moments, then handed it to his companion.

"What do you make of that?" he inquired.

"Lady's glove button, glove size five and a half, lady five foot three tall and weighing one hundred and twenty-nine pounds," replied Charlie; then stopped short.

"Ah—now I see you're thinking what I'm thinking," observed Rupert. "Namely, that although you can't really deduce a lady's height and weight from her glove button, you must be able to deduce her initials."

"J. M.," murmured Charlie.

"Yes—J. M. The initials on the blood-stained handkerchief. The initials of the lady we are helping—and who seems to have helped herself to our car, eh?"

"Looks like it,"

"Yes, but old filthy face in the shed told us he hadn't seen a girl leave the grounds!"

"All the same, we didn't find the girl in the house, did we? And this glove button wasn't in the car when we left it, and it's here now. I'm afraid, old chap, it's going to be that girl's finger print on this wheel. Oh, confound it!"

"I wish I'd seen her with my own eyes—so that I could go on basking her wholeheartedly!"

"Still thinking she may be a wrong 'un?" challenged Charlie.

"How can one so easily think anything else?"

"If she's a wrong 'un, Rupert," said Charlie earnestly, "I'll kick all the boots in the kingdom. Remember what you said a few minutes ago about 'feeling' people? You felt Brown, and you felt old filthy face. Well, although I only saw this girl for a moment, and I admit not under the best circumstances—I felt her."

"You mean, you were swept off your feet by her beauty?"

"Yes—I mean that. But the beauty of Cleopatra or—what's her name?—that dancer who chipped off Herod's head—would never sweep me off my feet!"

"All right, then—chuck it and go home!" cried Charlie, in sudden exasperation. "Brown and I will finish it!"

"Oh, you idiot!" retorted Rupert, as he let in the clutch. "Can you see that this wretched child has swept me off my feet as much as she's swept any of you? She's an absurd goddess in my mind—and I've simply got to meet her, to take down the inflammation!"

The car shot forward, and began to unwind the mile they had just walked.

They had taken fifteen minutes to reach the car. They took two to get back. At the gate of Coombe House, they stopped, and Rupert sprang out.

"What are you going to do?" asked Charlie, instinctively lowering his voice.

"Find out whether Brown still wants to sleep in a shed," replied Rupert. "We ought to give him one more chance of a comfortable bed especially as it's now quite certain the girl isn't in the house."

"But he doesn't come," murmured Charlie.

Rupert passed through the gate, and tiptoed to the shed. A snore greeted him. One of the sentries slept.

But the other was wide awake, and advanced to the entrance as Rupert drew up.

"You've found your car, then," said Brown. "I heard you coming."

"Yes; it's outside," replied Rupert. "Want to come along in it?"

"No thanks."

"Think again. Our lady isn't in the house."

"How do you know?"

"Because we found a lady's glove button in the car. It was she who went off with it. So what's the good of waiting?"

Brown hesitated. He was impressed by the news. A comfortable bed at an inn had its advantages. But, just suppose—?

He shook his head.

"Be sure you come back," he said, slowly. "I'll stay."

"Right," said Rupert, and held out a packet. "Here's a bit of supper. The rest of the sandwiches."

And here's a fresh box of matches, too. You may need 'em. Good night. A few feet away from him, Ted, who had taken up, and pay you an early visit in the morning."

"That's the idea," nodded Brown. "Good night."

Then Rupert smiled, in a friendly fashion, and departed. And Brown listened to the departing car, and swore that he wasn't afraid.

The clock in the distance struck eleven as he slipped the box of matches into his pocket and opened the packet of sandwiches.

"MY DEAR, I simply dread this daily shopping!" How many times have you heard that story? More than once, we'll bet a hat. And if you ask the woman who "dreads shopping" just why she does so you'll usually hear something like this:

"It takes so much time! I start out and look and look and look . . . and by the time I've found what I want I'm dead on my feet. All in, my dear. I mean I actually am!"
